Content-based instruction is a significant approach in language education, designed to provide second-language learners instruction in content and language. CBI is considered an empowering approach which encourages learners to learn a language by using it as a real means of communication from the very first day in class. The idea is to make them become independent learners so they can continue the learning process even outside the class. Historically, the word content has changed its meaning in

Content-based instruction - Wikipedia

Content-Based Instruction (CBI) is "an approach to second language teaching in which teaching is organized around the content or information that students will acquire, rather than around a linguistic or other type of syllabus" (Richards & Rodgers, 2001, p.204). In other words, CBI involves integrating the learning of

Content Based Instruction

In content-based instruction as in other experiential communicative language teaching approaches, the traditional second language instructional focus on raising learners' awareness of linguistic form is secondary to a focus on their learning and sharing of information through the medium of the second language, in a curriculum based on the language needed for learning the particular content.

In second language settings, students can continue to make progress in their academic subjects while they are still learning the new language." "CBLT can be motivating. Because the academic content must be learned, students are more motivated to learn the new language than they might be in classroom activities designed to teach the language only."

Content-based Language Teaching – Gabriel Guillén

Content and Language Integrated Learning (CLIL) is an approach where students learn a subject and a second language at the same time. A science course, for example, can be taught to students in English and they will not only learn about science, but they will also gain relevant vocabulary and language skills.

What is Content and Language Integrated Learning?

Content-based instruction. In recent years content-based instruction has become increasingly popular as a means of developing linguistic ability. It has strong connections to project work, task-based learning and a holistic approach to language instruction and has become particularly popular within the state school secondary (11 - 16 years old) education sector.
